

As you might know, Ed's birthday is coming up soon on Sunday, November 28th.

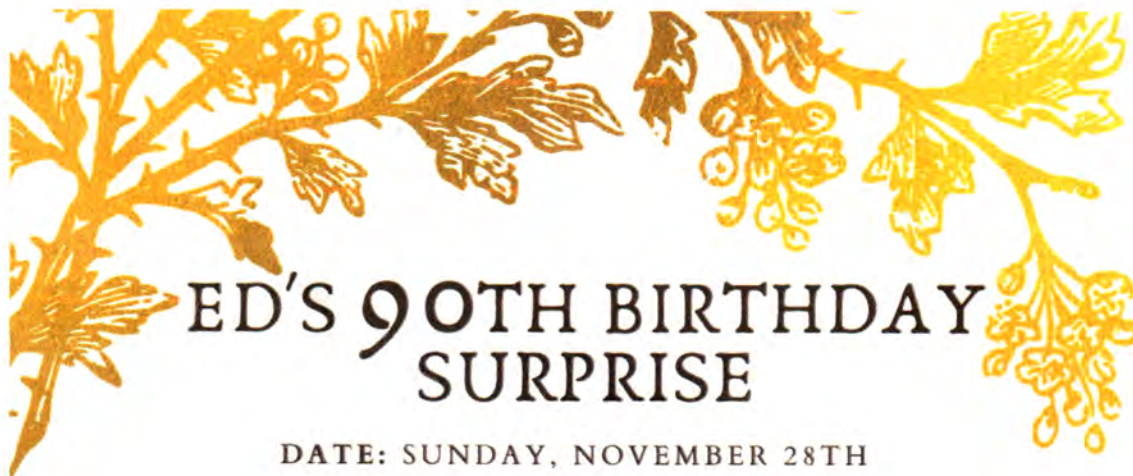

This year to celebrate his 90th, we're asking for people to send or give him a creative piece with dimensions of 8.5" x 11" or smaller using google eyes and adding a small hole to allow it to be hung. Following "Regeneration", the theme of his recent art exhibit, please do your best to use recycled/repurposed material.

The pieces can be sent to the following address below and please make sure to write "birthday surprise" on the outside of the envelope so he knows not to open it before his birthday. I know there isn't much time left before his birthday but I'm sure he wouldn't mind if some arrived after his birthday as well.

*Mailing address:
3 Whitman Street,
Hastings-on-Hudson, NY 10706*

Thank you for your participation and please reach out with any questions!

Best, Ananda & Antonia

There was no thing on earth I wanted to possess.

I knew no one worth my envying him.

Dear Ed

This is how I felt yesterday.
What a wonderful surprise and gift.

To be able to see your exhibit had already given me joy, but to hear the story that goes with each of the pieces felt like I was being asked to hold the insights and wisdom of your life journey and recognize how you respect and love the world

Thank you for your art, your words, your humility, your desire to make the world a place where everyone and everything has a unique purpose. It is only we are patient enough to look and see beyond our wants.

Seeing Nancy was also a treat. Like you, she has shared her spirit and offered me so much hope.

Keep being marvelous and human!

Thank you
Maggie

Dear 老師 Ed,

honored to call you our life is an amazing witness to your teachings. Thank you very, very much for your kindness & support during this grieving journey of Carol. You have been such a support & love which means so much.

How do you encapsulate someone as wise, intelligent, patient, kind, thoughtful and loyal as Ed?

Elephants are sacred animals in my culture. They represent intelligence, knowledge, wisdom and loyalty. Revered as a symbol of good luck and prosperity, the head symbolizes our ability to acquire wisdom and knowledge, while their big ears teach us to have patience so we can listen carefully. These majestic animals are also believed to be destroyers of evil and removers of obstacles.

Ed, you are all of these and more! Exactly a decade ago, we celebrated you, and your birthday, (albeit a week or so early) in Abilene. Ten years on, so much has happened. However, the only constant in all has been your kindness, constant encouragement, wisdom and friendship.

MAP-LESS MONARCHS

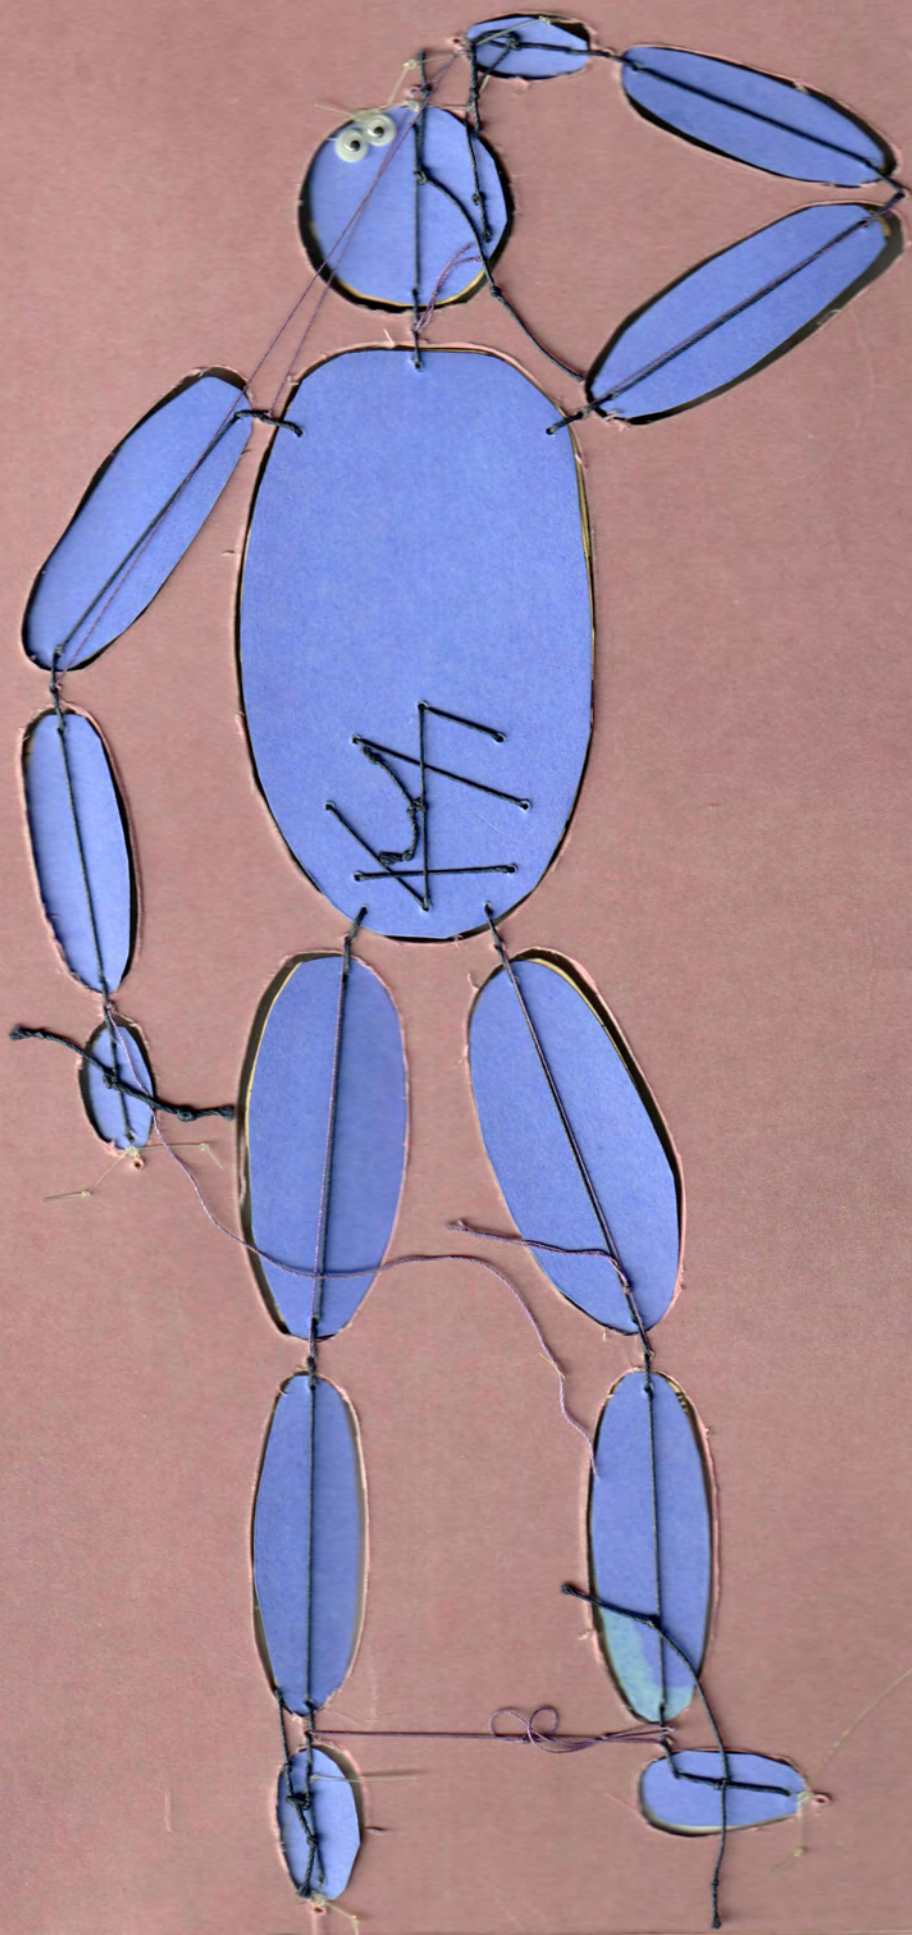

Map-less monarchs make it to Michoacan,
The sparrow spurts to a limb and alights,
The whale wakes the water and so does the swan,
The falcon soars to astonishing heights,

And the Milky Way spins, be it ever so slowly,
As we carve out turf in the One-Turning,
This cosmos, so stunningly endlessly holy,
We shatter to shards, and stifle our yearning.

This world we have conjured, bereft of Being,
Sand in a void, of all Spirit bled, Each speck a separate celibate thing,
A meaningless mote, essentially dead...

Yet the river remembers to flow and stay wet,
And the albatross folds her wings just right,
And the sun seems to know just where it should set,
And the clouds seem to know what to do with the light.

Hexagram

based on a true story
by Amelia Lau

A solid line is yang,
A broken line is yin.
On a bright summer day in 2021,
the Hudson River sang.

Among the tugboats going south, and clouds blowing east, and the sun edging west, along came four geese paddling north.

Toward Hastings, toward Hastings, they sang.
A solid line of geese is yang.

Along came four more geese, two in front and two behind, bobbing up and down in a broken line.

Toward Hastings, toward Hastings, they sang.
A broken line of geese is yin.

A yang line and a yin line,
the Hudson River sang.
But I need a trigram.

There were no more geese for a very long time.
I was ready to give up, when four more appeared, gently and sublime.

Toward Hastings, toward Hastings, they sang.
A solid line of geese is yang.

Yang, yin, yang, the Li trigram.
Double it! commanded the geese.

Li is the hexagram, Fire over Fire.
As they paddled past Hastings, the geese called out, Ed, Perseverance furthers. Success!

*"That which is bright rises twice:
The image of FIRE.
Thus the great man, by perpetuating this brightness, Illumines the four quarters of the world." **

We're grateful, Ed!
感谢你 Gan xie ni! honked the geese.

Let us analyze the character Li On the left—a net
On the right—a bird!

On a bright November day in 2021,
the Hudson River sang.
Li was Fire bright as sun, and the geese flew south to do Tai Chi Chuan.

Why We Spiral

Deadlines are just dead ends when lines forget how to bend They're nothing like the dreams I dream
They cannot flow like mountain streams

Finish lines finish last They never seem to be that fast
They do not start and they're always late They only ever watch and wait They're nothing like a garden scene Where every Spring things turn green

Triangles stand like mountains tall though they're nothing like Mountains at all No crags or cliffs or waterfalls can flow along their barren walls

Beware the squares They'll box you in
With no place for life to come in They'll corner you with nowhere to go They're nothing like the rain and snow

Circles seem like perfect things They go round and round like wedding rings but they always end where they begin they're nothing like the whirling wind

Only Nature naturally unfurls inside out in spiral swirls from leaf to spine to galaxies from the smallest shell to the tallest trees They revolve around a central space that opens like a smiling face

So when you draw don't forget to leave some room for "I don't know yet"
For that is how dragons are drawn in tiny spirals being born.

The essence of wisdom is contained in the eighty-one chapters of the Tao Te Ching, the classic manual on the art of living, written by Lao-tzu probably in the sixth century B.C.E. These verses are from the bestselling translation by Stephen Mitchell.

A photograph of David Janeway, an older man with glasses, wearing a dark suit and tie, leaning over a grand piano. He is smiling and looking towards the camera. His right hand is resting on the piano's surface. The piano's internal mechanism, including the strings and hammers, is visible in the foreground. The background is a light-colored wall with a geometric pattern.
